BIG DRIVE IN DARDANELLES BELIEVED TO BE UNDER WAY

By Associated Press.
London, September 9. — For the first time in many weeks, the Russians, according to their own statements, have inflicted a severe defeat on the Germans and Austrians.

The battle of Tuesday, near Tarnopol, 70 miles east of Lemberg and near the Galician frontier, is regarded as indicating that the Russians intend to strike back after their long retreat.

The Russians maintain that 8,000 prisoners, exclusive of the dead and wounded, measure the extent of their victory, and that it would have been more pronounced but for their inferiority in artillery.

The German center is forging forward slowly, by virtue of sustained pressure, but in the north Field Marshal von Hindenberg is still unable to force a passage of the Dvina.

Grand Duke Nicholas, removed as commander-in-chief of the Russian forces, is today on the way to his new headquarters in the Caucasus.

It is suggested in some quarters that the shift may be a forerunner to an important Russian diversion on the Turkish frontier, in connection with the Franco-British attempt to force the Dardanelles.

By means of air raids, gunfire from the sea and artillery bombardments, at many places on the western front, the French and British continue to hammer German positions, without launching infantry attacks.

Sofia, Bulgaria, September 9.—According to information received from reliable sources, the allies are now concentrating large forces, including heavy landing artillery, for a general attack on the Dardanelles.

The presence of mine sweepers at Seddul-Bahr, near the entrance to the straits, is regarded as foreshadowing increased activity, including a vigorous bombardment of the outer Dardanelles forts.

Paris, September 9.—According to a dispatch from Dedeaghat, the Bulgarians are actively fortifying that port and its environs.

Berlin, September 9.—An important victory in the Argonne was announced officially today.

French positions over a front of a quarter of a mile, and 400 to 500 yards deep, were captured.

Petrograd, September 9.—The brilliant victory won by the Russian army near Tarnopol is regarded here in the nature of a fitting celebration of the assumption of chief command of the armies by Emperor Nicholas.

The Germans had collected a great force, strengthened by both light and heavy artillery, on a 20-mile front, for the undoubted purpose of breaking through into the rich grain provinces of southwestern Russia. With inferior forces, the Russians were able to defeat the plan.

Burglars Enter House and Steal Jewels Worth Thousands and Shock Causes Death of Woman Worth Millions—Hall Boy Confesses to Aiding Burglars—$250,000 to $300,000 Worth of Valuable Jewels Undisturbed.

By Associated Press.
New York, September 9.—Owney Talas, a Russian Finn, for two and one-half months a hall boy in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols, the aged widow who met death last night at the hands of masked men, who robbed her of gems valued at $10,000, was arrested today, after he had confessed, the police assert, to having played a part in the crime. He was charged with murder.

The burglars failed to rifle the strong box of Mrs. Nichols' safe, in which she kept gems valued at from $250,000 to $500,000.

Talas, in what the police claim was his confession, is alleged to have said that for some time several men had been endeavoring to get him to "stand in with them" to rob Mrs. Nichols, but that he had refused such advances until Tuesday night, when he consented; but only upon the understanding that Mrs. Nichols was not to be harmed.

He is further alleged to have told the police it was understood that only the jewels Mrs. Nichols wore on her person were to be taken.

New York, September 9.—Half of the police detectives of New York were at work today, to find the three masked men who caused the death from fright of Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols, a wealthy widow, last night, and robbed her house of jewels whose value may run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Her body was found on the floor last evening, with a towel tightly knotted about her neck, and physicians who examined her body today declare she died from the shock.

Diamonds, said to be worth $10,000, had been torn from her fingers and ears, and it was reported a strong box, containing jewels valued at between $250,000 and $300,000, was carried away.

Owney Talas, hallboy in the Nichols home, which was in the midst of a millionaire's residential district, was held by the police, and according to them he made a confession to substantiate a theory that the robbers were assisted by some one within the residence.

Talas and a maid admitted the robbers at a basement door, when they rang the bell, and these servants were gagged and bound.

Mrs. Nichols evidently had made a great struggle, despite her 60 years.

DUMBA'S MAN FRIDAY LOSES HIS PASSPORTS

By Associated Press.

Washington, September 9.—Secretary Lansing has cancelled the passports of James F. Archibald, the American correspondent, upon whom British secret service men found communications from Dr. Dumba, Austro-Hungarian ambassador, to his foreign office, on the subject of fomenting strikes in American munition plants.

This is the first official action in a diplomatic situation which, it has been suggested, might possibly extend so far as to cause the departure of Dr. Dumba from this country.

HEART OF LONDON IS RAIDED BY ZEPPELINS

Twenty Killed and Eighty-nine Wounded in Latest Zeppelin Attack, Which Was Carried to Very Heart of London—Censor Busy, But Indications Are That Big Panic Followed Appearance of the Kaiser's Aerial Fleet Over the English Capital—Apprehension for Safety of Americans Is Held in Washington.

By Associated Press.
London, September 9. — Twenty persons were killed and 86 others injured, in last night's Zeppelin raid. These figures were given out here officially today.

The airships flew over the eastern counties of England and the London district.

Those killed were twelve men, two women and six children.

The attack of last night brings up the total of casualties from Zeppelin raids, to 122 killed and 349 injured. On the previous night thirteen persons were killed and 43 wounded.

The raid is described by the Pall Mall Gazette as "Londoners' first glimpse of the war at close quarters."

The public is advised to take aerial visitors more seriously than it did last night.

English newspapers are prohibited from publishing unofficial details concerning such attacks, but the foregoing guarded references indicated that the Zeppelins approached the heart of the city more closely than on previous occasions.

Chicago, September 9.—The Daily News today based a surmise that last night's Zeppelin raids on England must have been over the heart of London, on two telegrams from a staff correspondent at London.

The first read: "Daily News Office and Staff Safe;" and the second: "All Well."

The News' office there is on Trafalgar Square, not far from St. James palace, Westminster Abbey, the Parliament buildings and the Charing Cross railroad station.

Washington, September 9. — As late as 3 o'clock this afternoon no dispatches had been received by the State Department from Ambassador Page or Consul General Skinner, on the Zeppelin raid on London, and officials did not know whether Americans had been harmed or endangered.

As the raid was over a section where many Americans gather, there was some apprehension.

Berlin, September 9.—The War Office announced today that on Tuesday and Wednesday nights bombs were dropped on docks and other port establishments in London, by German airships, which returned safely.

RECALL OF DUMBA MAY BE DESIRED

President Wilson Attaches Importance to the Case.

HE VISITS LANSING'S OFFICE

Prompt Action to Be Taken as Soon as the President and Secretary of State Come Into Possession of All the Facts—Dumba's Call on Department of Labor Excites Comment at the Capital.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The importance attached by the administration to the action of Constantine Dumba, Austro-Hungarian ambassador, in writing a letter to the Vienna foreign office discussing plans for the withdrawal of Austro-Hungarian labor from American plants making war supplies for the allies, was demonstrated when President Wilson called at the state department to discuss the incident with Secretary Lansing.

Prompt action will likely be taken in the case of Dumba just as soon as the president and the secretary of state come into possession of all the facts. They are awaiting the receipt here of the memorandum prepared by the editor of a Hungarian newspaper in New York in which a scheme was outlined to bring about strikes in the steel and munition factories in the middle west.

This memorandum is referred to in the Dumba letter, a copy of which is now in the possession of the secretary of state. The letter refers to an enclosure which is described as an "aide memoire" prepared by the Hungarian editor, "in pursuance of his proposals to arrange for strikes in the Bethlehem Schwab steel and munitions factory, and also in the middle west."

The impression is growing in Washington that Dr. Dumba will soon leave the United States. Whether this will be accomplished by dismissal at the hands of the president or withdrawal by the Vienna government is a matter of lively speculation.

Passports Canceled.

Secretary Lansing has canceled the passport of Captain J. F. J. Archibald, the American war correspondent, who took the Dumba letter abroad. It is for this reason that Captain Archibald started back to the United States.

A good deal of comment was excited here by a call made by Ambassador Dumba at the department of labor. The ambassador called, it is said, for the purpose of obtaining information as to what means the department had at hand to secure employment for Austro-Hungarian workmen in case they retired from the service of munitions factories throughout the United States. He was informed that the labor department could give him no assistance.

It is the understanding here that the president and Secretary Lansing are agreed that this government would be warranted in asking for the recall of Dr. Dumba upon the facts now before them. Dr. Dumba has admitted that he wrote the letter in controversy, but that he did so in obedience to orders issued by his government.

Ambassador Dumba is understood to have told Secretary Lansing that the Austro-Hungarian citizens employed in the steel industry of the United States were held in virtual slavery and that he owed a duty to them to try and improve their condition. He insisted that he personally was indifferent as to whether this government asked for his recall or not, as if he had not done just what he did he "might as well not be here."

AMERICA BECOMES AROUSSED

INSTRUCTS GERARD TO QUESTION BERLIN

Lansing Wants Exact Facts in the Case of the Hesperian.

Washington, Sept. 9.—In an effort to get at the exact facts as to the sinking of the British liner Hesperian, Secretary of State Lansing cabled Ambassador Gerard directing him to request of the German government whether it had received any report from its submarine commanders on the Hesperian case. It is thought that if Germany admits that one of her submarines attacked the Hesperian, she might seek justification in the fact that the liner was armed with a six-inch gun, mounted aft.

In view of the part which the presence of the gun is likely to play in this case, it is regarded as significant that the state department is still to announce a decision in regard to the British steamer refused clearance papers at Norfolk on the ground that she has two guns on board. Although Secretary Lansing admitted several days ago that the United States early in the war had declared that vessels leaving American ports could carry mounted guns for purely defensive purposes, he indicated that in view of the prominent part which submarines have since played in the war it might be necessary to modify this ruling.

WOMAN IN MOHR CASE

Providence, R. I., Sept. 9.—The discovery of more threatening letters written to Dr. C. Franklin Mohr a few days before he was shot and killed while riding with his secretary, Miss Emily G. Burger, on Aug. 31, may bring into the case the name of another woman. Mrs. Mohr's attorneys will probably produce these letters at the hearing next week, and they say they are willing to try the case now, so confident are they that their client will be acquitted.

Mysterious letters sent to Dr. Mohr are becoming the most common feature of the case. The most recent discovery made by the police in this direction is that a short time before Dr. Mohr met his death letters addressed to Cecil Victor Brown, the colored man who confessed he shot the physician, were turned over to Dr. Mohr by his servants. From what these letters said Dr. Mohr believed that his life was in danger.

In outlining his beliefs, Mr. Ford said: "I believe thoroughly that education is necessary to insure peace in the United States. SERPENT OF LERNAEA.

Scientific Basis For the Myth of the Many Headed Monster.

A noted surgeon suggests that the story of the many headed serpent of Lerna, if a myth, is yet a myth with an altogether scientific foundation. The monster was credited with anywhere from nine to 100 heads, and, according to the legend, if one was cut off another immediately grew in its place. Some averred that each head was replaced by two.

The origin of this serpent, as well as its acts and its final destruction by Hercules, are entirely fanciful, of course, but some recent juggling in biological laboratories seems to show that the ancients may have got their conceptions of its form and being from what they had actually seen. Professor T. H. Morgan, for instance, has cut off the anterior end of an earthworm and excised a piece of the central nerve cord. This left the anterior nerve ends, and a head grew from each.

Dr. Van Dyne recently went much further in the case of a marine planarian, actually developing six heads upon the creature, each with its own eyes and apparently normal in its functions.—Exchange.

RECALL OF DUMBA MAY BE DESIRED

President Wilson Attaches Importance to the Case.

HE VISITS LANSING'S OFFICE

Prompt Action to Be Taken as Soon as the President and Secretary of State Come Into Possession of All the Facts—Dumba's Call on Department of Labor Excites Comment at the Capital.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The importance attached by the administration to the action of Constantine Dumba, Austro-Hungarian ambassador, in writing a letter to the Vienna foreign office discussing plans for the withdrawal of Austro-Hungarian labor from American plants making war supplies for the allies, was demonstrated when President Wilson called at the state department to discuss the incident with Secretary Lansing.

Prompt action will likely be taken in the case of Dumba just as soon as the president and the secretary of state come into possession of all the facts. They are awaiting the receipt here of the memorandum prepared by the editor of a Hungarian newspaper in New York in which a scheme was outlined to bring about strikes in the steel and munition factories in the middle west.

This memorandum is referred to in the Dumba letter, a copy of which is now in the possession of the secretary of state. The letter refers to an enclosure which is described as an "aide memoire" prepared by the Hungarian editor, "in pursuance of his proposals to arrange for strikes in the Bethlehem Schwab steel and munitions factory, and also in the middle west."

The impression is growing in Washington that Dr. Dumba will soon leave the United States. Whether this will be accomplished by dismissal at the hands of the president or withdrawal by the Vienna government is a matter of lively speculation.

Passports Canceled.

Secretary Lansing has canceled the passport of Captain J. F. J. Archibald, the American war correspondent, who took the Dumba letter abroad. It is for this reason that Captain Archibald started back to the United States.

A good deal of comment was excited here by a call made by Ambassador Dumba at the department of labor. The ambassador called, it is said, for the purpose of obtaining information as to what means the department had at hand to secure employment for Austro-Hungarian workmen in case they retired from the service of munitions factories throughout the United States. He was informed that the labor department could give him no assistance.

It is the understanding here that the president and Secretary Lansing are agreed that this government would be warranted in asking for the recall of Dr. Dumba upon the facts now before them. Dr. Dumba has admitted that he wrote the letter in controversy, but that he did so in obedience to orders issued by his government.

Ambassador Dumba is understood to have told Secretary Lansing that the Austro-Hungarian citizens employed in the steel industry of the United States were held in virtual slavery and that he owed a duty to them to try and improve their condition. He insisted that he personally was indifferent as to whether this government asked for his recall or not, as it he had not done just what he did he "might as well not be here."

AMERICA BECOMES AROUSED

INSTRUCTS GERARD TO QUESTION BERLIN

Lansing Wants Exact Facts in the Case of the Hesperian.

Washington, Sept. 9.—In an effort to get at the exact facts as to the sinking of the British liner Hesperian, Secretary of State Lansing cabled Ambassador Gerard directing him to request of the German government whether it had received any report from its submarine commanders on the Hesperian case. It is thought that if Germany admits that one of her submarines attacked the Hesperian, she might seek justification in the fact that the liner was armed with a six-inch gun, mounted aft.

In view of the part which the presence of the gun is likely to play in this case, it is regarded as significant that the state department is still to announce a decision in regard to the British steamer refused clearance papers at Norfolk on the ground that she has two guns on board. Although Secretary Lansing admitted several days ago that the United States early in the war had declared that vessels leaving American ports could carry mounted guns for purely defensive purposes, he indicated that in view of the prominent part which submarines have since played in the war it might be necessary to modify this ruling.

WOMAN IN MOHR CASE

Providence, R. I., Sept. 9.—The discovery of more threatening letters written to Dr. C. Franklin Mohr a few days before he was shot and killed while riding with his secretary, Miss Emily G. Burger, on Aug. 31, may bring into the case the name of another woman. Mrs. Mohr's attorneys will probably produce these letters at the hearing next week, and they say they are willing to try the case now, so confident are they that their client will be acquitted.

Mysterious letters sent to Dr. Mohr are becoming the most common feature of the case. The most recent discovery made by the police in this direction is that a short time before Dr. Mohr met his death letters addressed to Cecil Victor Brown, the colored man who confessed he shot the physician, were turned over to Dr. Mohr by his servants. From what these letters said Dr. Mohr believed that his life was in danger.

$10,000,000 FOR PEACE, SAYS FORD

Detroit, Sept. 9.—That he will follow his $10,000,000 peace offer with one of $9,000,000 more, if necessary, is the announcement made by Henry Ford, who says he already has men employed in the active formulation of plans toward bringing the question before the entire country. In outlining his beliefs, Mr. Ford said: "I believe thoroughly that education is necessary to insure peace in the United States. The people must be taught that the glamour and glory painted into war pictures are false. They must be shown that preparedness for war creates war. They must learn how their taxes are used for military preparations in times of peace only to be wasted along with their lives in time of war."

DANIELS URGES PATIENCE

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels urged the continuance of patience on the part of the American people, and likened President Wilson, in his patience, to Lincoln and McKinley. Mr. Daniels was the principal speaker at the tenth annual banquet of the Federation of Trade Press associations here. "I have faith," Mr. Daniels said, "that this country will be equal to its business needs. I have the faith that the American people will be equal to any emergency, even to that emergency that confronts it in this darkest hour of the world."

AGAINST CHICAGO EDUCATION BOARD

Chicago, Sept. 9.—A nation-wide campaign against the Chicago board of education and in favor of the Chicago Teachers' federation was launched at a mass meeting held at the Auditorium theatre under the auspices of the Chicago Federation of Labor. National, state and city leaders of organized labor gathered in Chicago to prepare plans for the attack to be made upon the Loeb rule prohibiting teachers in the public schools belonging to trade unions. Samuel Gompers and others made addresses.

OHIO CROPS

Columbus, Sept. 9.—Ohio farmers sowed 1,369,049 acres in wheat this year, and the state agricultural department figures the average yield will be about fifteen bushels to the acre, the same as it was last year, when 1,344,689 acres were in wheat. The corn yield will also be about the same as last year, 110,000,000 bushels. Oats will show an increase. The potato crop promises to be above normal.

SERPENT OF LERNAEA.

Scientific Basis For the Myth of the Many Headed Monster.

A noted surgeon suggests that the story of the many headed serpent of Lerna, if a myth, is yet a myth with an altogether scientific foundation. The monster was credited with anywhere from nine to 100 heads, and, according to the legend, if one was cut off another immediately grew in its place. Some averred that each head was replaced by two.

The origin of this serpent, as well as its acts and its final destruction by Hercules, are entirely fanciful, of course, but some recent juggling in biological laboratories seems to show that the ancients may have got their conceptions of its form and being from what they had actually seen. Professor T. H. Morgan, for instance, has cut off the anterior end of an earthworm and excised a piece of the central nerve cord. This left the anterior nerve ends, and a head grew from each.

Dr. Van Dyne recently went much further in the case of a marine planarian, actually developing six heads upon the creature, each with its own eyes and apparently normal in its functions.—Exchange.

Caverns where through midnight quivers many an opalescent gleam. There is grandeur past the painting, loveliness the soul acquainting With the thrill of things supernal and the calm of things divine— With the Master Workman's rarest masterpieces, grandest, fairest— There are mysteries eternal in this land of your and mine!

There is history far older than the annals of mankind. There are footprints left by nations of far ages, all unknown. There are traces of a bolder race and one of lofty mind. Ah! what it was and is to be, this land of yours and mine!

Our cities are the wonder of the ancient fatherlands. Our far-spread plains are gleaming with more wealth than Midas dreamed— Now let us pause to ponder on the treasures in our hands. The gifts beyond our dreaming which from plenty's horn have streamed! Let us honor our own mother—our own country—first, my brother, Let us learn to know her better than all lands beyond the brine. Things to Worry About.
If when William I. landed in England in 1066 he had invested 1 English penny at 6 per cent annual compound interest, principal and interest to be paid to the British government in 1915, the debt would amount to such a sum that the entire wheat crop of the United States, estimated at 700,000,000 bushels, if sold for $100 per grain, would not pay one day's interest on the debt.

What has become of the old fashioned man who used to play the accordion?

You can always make an enemy out of a man by calling his bluff. Judging from the way the divorces are pouring through the hoppers, some men and some women would like to get partners as they buy their socks and hosiery—guaranteed to wear for three months or you get new ones.

We have self rocking cradles, self sufficient children and self amusing husbands, but there are no self supporting wives.

Most of us are willing to say nothing if the other fellows will say the word.

GILBERT AS A WIZARD.

Curious Tricks of an Old Time Investigator of Electricity.

H. G. Wells has called attention in "The World Set Free" to a half forgotten worthy who, in "the spacious times of great Elizabeth," loomed large indeed. Science, to be sure, does not forget him, and one great English poet, Dryden, has proclaimed with resonant emphasis:

Gilbert shall live until loadstones cease to draw.

Nevertheless how many young students of electricity today ever heard of William Gilbert?

"It was Gilbert, Queen Elizabeth's court physician, who first puzzled his brains with rubbed amber and bits of glass and silk and shellac," says Mr. Wells, "and so began the quickening of the human mind to the existence of this universal presence. And even then the science of electricity remained a mere little group of curious facts for 200 years, connected perhaps with magnetism—a mere guess that—perhaps with the lightning. * * * Except for the lightning conductor, it was 250 years before electricity stepped out of the cabinet of scientific curiosities into the life of the common man."

Gilbert's theories and guesses about magnetism—he concluded that the world is a vast spherical magnet—were serious and far-reaching, and he embodied them in a book with a ponderous Latin title—the first great book on physics published in England. But his experiments were chiefly of the curio and plaything sort. An English collection of Elizabethan letters and anecdotes of court life quotes the opinion of a provincial young lady of quality, but recently come up to London to accept a position in the queen's household, who had witnessed some of them. She wrote home to her mother:

"The queen is now well recovered of her sickness, which was but little, tho it lookt at first as it would be greater. She puts much trust in her Doctor, one Gilbert, and soe doe her ladies for the moste parte, and I am laught at by alle but onely Lady Margaret for that I doe fear the man and his cures that they bee not such as are permitted to Xtian (Christian) folke to undergoe. I have seen him playe strange tricks, takinge, for the diversion of the queen's ladies, a silke glove from one and her bedes of ambre from another and a serape of the writinge of hey Love from another. If she have it about her and can be perswaded to give it uppe, and makinge the one to russe and give forth speckles of fyre, and the others one to pick the other uppe by touching of it—and a blacke catte cominge in he rubed her that she brisled and gave forth the little fyres that daunced alonge her furre in the dark as if the wyches that love blacke cattes were stroking her back. Soche matters are of the diuel and shoide not be medled with for sporte, they are not meet for good Xtians."

Poor, timid little lady! If she deemed Dr. Gilbert's tricks and cures of 300 years ago so perilous to the soul what would she have thought of the electric shocks, baths, massage and all the varied tingling, prickling, crackling and spark spitting electrical devices of our modern physicians?

Fresh Figs.
The first known tree referred to in the Bible is the fig tree. We are apt to think of figs as very sweet dried fruit, brown in color, packed into long wooden boxes. When newly gathered figs are rather like pears in shape and of a green or purple color. Eaten in this state, the people of the east consider them the most delicious of fruit, but the figs are also dried, and in that form are included in almost every meal.

Danger of Too Much Gold

Judging from the news reports our banker friends of the United States are not pleased with the tremendous inflow of gold to this country from Europe.

Great Britain is now transporting nearly fifty million dollars in gold and high class securities to the banks of New York for the purpose of maintaining the value of her money and preventing the credit of the empire from being impaired.

The present enormous shipment is the third large one made by Great Britain to this country in a very short time.

Just why the bankers should object to piling up this horde of wealth is not exactly clear to the great number of American citizens who are not burdened with an oversupply of gold. They inform the public, so the news reports announce, that the tremendous deposits of gold and securities will tend largely to make our people too extravagant in their dealings and may result in an expansion of credit that will be productive of a financial stringency following the war when the deposits are withdrawn.

That fear may be fully warranted, but it does seem a bit trying for the men who tell us, when the gold is scarce and the flow is the other way, that it is impossible to expand, to now tell us that it is too dangerous to expand when we possess the gold.

These men who are experts in the science of money, these men who hold the financial compass are better qualified to speak on such matters, but some how or other it seems that the advice given is always the same and the people "must not." We either haven't the gold or there may come a day when the gold will leave us.

Economy is an admirable trait for people to possess and advice to practice economy is proper, but not always popular.

Right now, with the gold pouring in in a steady stream, it is difficult in spite of the announced reason for the people to understand just why we should "view with alarm" the increasing horde.

To much gold may be dangerous to future prosperity, but most people will not object to being placed in that kind of danger.

Czar Assumes Command

The Czar has assumed personal command of all the Russian armies; this is the latest important change in military affairs in the European war.

Whether Grand Duke Nicholas, who has been in supreme command of the Muscovite forces since the war began is superseded by the Czar, is not announced. While the Grand Duke has suffered a long series of reverses—practically an unbroken series—since the commencement of the Austro-German offensive movement in May, yet he has always been considered by experts as a commander possessing remarkable military talent.

While he has been compelled to abandon a number of cities and fortifications in Galicia and Poland, to the Teutonic troops, the skill with which the Grand Duke succeeded in extricating his armies and saving his equipment, munition trains and supplies from the tremendous enveloping movement of his adversaries, has secured for the Grand Duke a great deal of praise even from his adversaries.

It was in withdrawing safely the Slav armies from the "sack" at Warsaw that earned for him the title of mastery of retreat.

With all that, however, the Russian war party and the Russian people are dissatisfied with the long continued reverses which have attended the Russian campaign in the field.

It is not likely that either the Czar or officials high in the Russian government, acquainted with the real causes for the methods adopted by Grand Duke Nicholas and are fully cognizant of the difficulties which he encountered, are at all dissatisfied with or unappreciative of his plans and their execution.

It is not likely either that the assumption of command by the Czar indicates that Russia will look favorably upon proposals for a separate peace.

The most reasonable explanation for the change at this time is that it is done for the purpose of encouraging the faltering Russian troops and reviving the ebbing confidences of the Russian masses.

It is improbable, too, that the Russian armies will undertake an extensive offensive movement with winter so close at hand.

The change coming at this time, in the opinion of military experts, seems to promise a cessation, in a measure, of active campaigning until next spring in the eastern theater of war.

The remains of whose creations have outlasted cliffs of stone; There is legend, there is story, there is romance, there is glory.

Where history and mystery their ancient lures combine; Marvels old with awe to thrill us, marvels new with pride to fill us.

Ah! what it was and is to be, this land of yours and mine!

Our cities are the wonder of the ancient fatherlands.

Our far-spreading plains are gleaming with more wealth than Midas dreamed—

Now let us pause to ponder on the treasures in our hands.

The gifts beyond our dreaming which from plenty's horn have streamed!

Let us honor our own mother—our own country—first, my brother.

Let us learn to know her better than all lands beyond the brine.

For the best gifts of creation God has given to our nation.

Hearts with bonds of love to fetter to this land of yours and mine!

Things to Worry About.

If when William I. landed in England in 1905 he had invested 1 English penny at 6 per cent annual compound interest, principal and interest to be paid to the British government in 1915, the debt would amount to such a sum that the entire wheat crop of the United States, estimated at 700,000,000 bushels, if sold for $100 per grain, would not pay one day's interest on the debt.

What has become of the old fashioned man who used to play the accordion?

You can always make an enemy out of a man by calling his bluff.

Judging from the way the divorces are pouring through the hoppers, some men and some women would like to get partners as they buy their socks and hosiery—guaranteed to wear for three months or you get new ones.

We have self rocking cradles, self sufficient children and self amusing husbands, but there are no self supporting wives.

A girl spends ten years learning music so she can forget it when she gets married.

A man who has no salaries to pay is always in favor of raising them.

The way things are running now it won't be long until parents will be sent to bed without their suppers because they talked back to their children.

Most of us are willing to say nothing if the other fellows will say the word.

When a bride has been married for ten days she begins figuring on how she will celebrate her silver wedding and just who she will invite.

A woman believes that there is something crooked about a woman who can keep a secret.

When a man is sitting in a street car and there are some pretty girls sitting opposite him, and the man keeps his eyes fixed on the advertising cards and never lowers them, you can bet that the woman sitting beside him is his wife.

GILBERT AS A WIZARD.

Curious Tricks of an Old Time Investigator of Electricity.

H. G. Wells has called attention in "The World Set Free" to a half forgotten worthy who, in "the spacious times of great Elizabeth," loomed large indeed. Science, to be sure, does not forget him, and one great English poet, Dryden, has proclaimed with resonant emphasis:

Gilbert shall live until loadstones cease to draw.

Nevertheless how many young students of electricity today ever heard of William Gilbert?

"It was Gilbert, Queen Elizabeth's court physician, who first puzzled his brains with rubbed amber and bits of glass and silk and shellac," says Mr. Wells, "and so began the quickening of the human mind to the existence of this universal presence. And even then the science of electricity remained a mere little group of curious facts for 200 years, connected perhaps with magnetism—a mere guess that—perhaps with the lightning . . . Except for the lightning conductor, it was 230 years before electricity stepped out of the cabinet of scientific curiosities into the life of the common man."

Gilbert's theories and guesses about magnetism—he concluded that the world is a vast spherical magnet—were serious and far-reaching, and he embodied them in a book with a ponderous Latin title—the first great book on physics published in England. But his experiments were chiefly of the curious and plaything sort. An English collection of Elizabethan letters and anecdotes of court life quotes the opinion of a provincial young lady of quality, but recently come up to London to accept a position in the queen's household, who had witnessed some of them. She wrote home to her mother:

"The queen is now well recovered of her sickness, which was but little, tho it lookt at first as it would be greater. She puts much trust in her doctor, one Gilbert, and soe doe her ladies for the moste parte, and I am laught at by alle but onely Lady Margaret for that I doe fear the man and his cures that they bee not such as are permitted to Xtian (Christian) folke to undergoe. I have seen him playe strange tricks, takinge, for the diversion of the queen's ladies, a silke glove from one and her bedes of ambre from another and a scrapple of the writinge of her Love from another, if she have it about her and can be perswaded to give it uppe, and makinge the one to russe and give forth speckles of fyre, and the others one to pick the other uppe by touching of it—and a blacke catte cominge in he rubed her that she bristled and gave forth the little fyres that daunced alonge her furre in the dark as if the wyches that love blacke cattes were strokinge her back. Soche matters are of the diuel and sholde not be medled with for sporte, they are not meet for good Xtians."

Poor, timid little lady! If she deemed Dr. Gilbert's tricks and cures of 300 years ago so perilous to the soul what would she have thought of the electric shocks, baths, massage and all the varied tingling, prickling, crackling and spark spitting electrical devices of our modern physicians?

Before the Toothbrush.

Before the invention of toothbrushes people used to clean their teeth with linen. This is evident from William Vaughan's "Fifteen Directions to Preserve Health," published 1602, in which the author tells those who want to keep the teeth "white and uncorrupt" that they must wash the mouth after every meal, "sleepe with the mouth somewhat open . . . and in the morning take a linnen-cloth and rub the teeth well within and without." In Vaughan's time several varieties of tooth powder were known, the recipe for one of the simplest being as follows: "Burne a piece of Corke till it looks like a Coale, then take it out of the Fyre and it will fall to ashes, wherewith rub your teeth."—London Chronicle.

Fresh Figs.

The first known tree referred to in the Bible is the fig tree. We are apt to think of figs as very sweet dried fruit, brown in color, packed into long wooden boxes. When newly gathered figs are rather like pears in shape and of a green or purple color. Eaten in this state, the people of the east consider them the most delicious of fruit, but the figs are also dried, and in that form are included in almost every meal.

SKULL CRUSHED WHILE PITCHING HORSESHOES

Ten-year-old Chester Beedy, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Beedy, of Paint Township, Nearing Death as Result of Being Hit in Head With Horseshoe and Skull Broken While Playing With His Brothers.

Chester Beedy, the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Beedy, residing on the William H. Durlinger farm in Paint township, is at the point of death with little or no hope of his recovery, as the result of his skull being crushed by a horseshoe pitched by an elder brother a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Beedy were away from home and the boys were engaged in a spirited game of pitching horseshoes, when Chester ran in to obtain some shoes just as his elder brother hurled a heavy shoe at the stake. The shoe struck the lad squarely in the top of the head, breaking the skull and allowing pieces of the brain to ooze from the wound.

The little fellow dropped to the ground in an unconscious condition and was carried into the house. Neighbors were called by the thoroughly frightened lads, and a physician from Sedalia was summoned and dressed the wound as best he could.

The boy's condition has been gradually growing more serious until Thursday morning it was reported that death was almost certain. Dr. McDonald of Bloomington was called in and a consultation held Wednesday night. It was deemed best to remove the unconscious lad to a local hospital, but the mother, broken down by long days' of anxious watching, would not consent to the lad's removal from his home when hardly a chance to save his life was held out even if he was taken to a hospital.

MILLEDGEVILLE TEAM OF YEARS AGO TO PLAY AGAIN

Team of 1890-94, Which Put It Over Washington Greys Many Times, Will Meet and Play Present Milledgeville Team and Hold Reunion—Prosecutor Maddox to Play Short Stop—Game Sunday.

Play Ball! When this order is given on the Wm. Frayne or old Thornton farm near Milledgeville at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon it will be the signal for one of the most remarkable games of baseball ever played in Fayette county. It will be a clash between the old Milledgeville team of 1890-94 and the present team, and the old boys expect to trounce the youngsters in old-time fashion—just as they used to trounce the Washington Greys when they were at the height of their baseball glory.

The old lineup will be on the field, members of the team coming from various points in Ohio and taking their old places on the diamond and with some of the old time fervor to "beat the other team or bust."

BAD CONDITION OF LEWIS PIKE AND STREET

A great amount of traffic is being turned over the Lewis pike and Lewis street since the closing of the Jeffersonville pike for improvement, and the pike and street, in a sorry condition at the beginning, is becoming so deplorably bad that those compelled to travel the road and street are making a loud protest over the condition of the thoroughfares. In addition to innumerable ruts and chuck holes which makes traveling a bugbear, the roads show other indications of lack of proper attention, and the proper road and street authorities are being urged to give relief in some way, if it is nothing more than spiking, grading and rolling the thoroughfares where they are the worst.

The wet weather and heavy traffic has sent the road to pieces in short order, and prompt action before the winter sets in or before heavy hauling of corn begins, is desired.

MARRIED ONE WEEK ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Alleging that one day after his marriage to the defendant, she was guilty of misconduct with Frederick Lozier, at his home in Muckingham township, and asserting further that the two have since that time lived together, Charles Arnold filed suit for divorce from Ida Arnold, in common pleas court, Tuesday morning. B. E. Guyton is the plaintiff's attorney.

Less than a week ago the two were married in this city. In making application for the license, Arnold gave his age as 34 and his home address as Washington C. H. The woman said she was 36. Both had been previously married.—Marietta Times

Arnold was released from the Fayette county infirmary last spring and went at once to Marietta where nothing had been heard from him until the present somewhat unusual incident.

Arnold is crippled, having had one leg removed several years ago following an attack of fever.

TENS OF THOUSANDS OF FALL PORKERS

The number of fall pigs in Fayette county this year will reach into the tens of thousands—the largest number in a great many years, according to a local veterinarian who has been over the county considerably.

The number of fall pigs will almost equal the unusual number of spring pigs, according to the veterinarian, and an increased consumption of grain will be result, with an exceptionally heavy marketing of fat swine next year.

RAILROADS GREATLY IMPROVING CROSSINGS

The C. H. & D., D. T. & I. and Pennsylvania railroads are all making elaborate preparations for the new paved street crossings on West Court street, and before the paving is laid will lay new and heavier steel and cross-ties which will last indefinitely and it is expected that it will not be necessary to disturb the crossings for many years after they are once down.

At the present time the D. T. & I. has a force of men engaged in the work of laying new steel, new ties and bringing the roadbed up to the proper grade.

The enterprise of the railroads meets with the hearty approval of the city officials generally.

WATCH FOR WOMAN COLLECTING MONEY

Complaint has been made that a woman, said to reside in this city, has been going from house to house obtaining money under the representation that she is working for a prize offered by the Grace M. E. Epworth League for the largest amount of money raised for the Home Missionary Society, by Saturday night of this week.

The Epworth League of Grace church has made no such offer, and it is claimed the woman is obtaining money under false representations and those whom she approaches are urged to notify the police immediately that she may be taken in charge.

The woman has approached a number of leading citizens and upon the statement that she was obtaining money for the Home Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, obtained a snug sum toward the "prize."

SUGAR GROVE SESSION

Mrs. Theresa Brakefield filled the role of hostess to the Sugar Grove W. C. T. U., Wednesday afternoon.

A number of good papers were presented on pertinent subjects. Mrs. Maude Cockerill treated of "Reckoning on Rum;" Mrs. Sallie Marine on "Give no Alcohol to Children;" Mrs. Elva Post, "The Bayonet Charge;" Mrs. Lurella Silcott, "Being Interviewed by an Angel;" Miss Minnie Breakfield, "Weighing Down the Safety Valve;" Mrs. Bell Marine, "Alcohol is a Mockery."

Mrs. Laura Pine conducted physical culture drill, after which a social hour with refreshments was enjoyed.

Mrs. Laura Pine was elected alternate to the delegate, Mrs. Pearl Darlington, to the state W. C. T. U. Convention, to be held in Dayton, the 22nd.

In order not to conflict with this convention the next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 21st, at the home of Mrs. Belle Marine.

STREET WORK

Some of the street improvement work has been delayed by the continued rains but the Andrews Paving Co. will begin laying asphalt on East Court street, Monday of next week, it is announced.

The work of pouring the concrete base on West Court street began Thursday. Excavation work on Leesburg avenue is moving forward, and the material removed is being placed on the adjoining streets and alleys.

Work on the Leesburg avenue sewer begins next week and Service Director Gerstner will require 35 additional laborers.

BURIED IN COLUMBUS

The funeral services of Mr. George Owens, of Columbus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Owens, of Manara, who died Sunday, were held in Columbus Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Owens, Mr. Joe Andrews were among relatives from this vicinity going up for the funeral.

The summons of this rising young man at the age of 25 years and at the expiration of only one year of happy married life, is sad beyond words to tell, and has aroused much regret and sympathy in this county, Mr. Owens' former home.

Tomorrow is the last discount day for gas and electric light bills.

THE "FORLORN HOPE."

Real Meaning of a Misused Term in the Vocabulary of War.

In the tales of every war one hears a great deal about "forlorn hopes." The term is one of the most misused in the vocabulary of war. It is commonly understood to mean a desperate venture. It really means "lost troop"—that is, "detached troop."

The word "hope" in the phrase is not an English but a Dutch word, "hoop" meaning literally "heap" and secondarily body of troops. The word "forlorn" represents the Dutch "verloren"—lost. A "verloren hoop" was a detached body of troops thrown out in front of the main line of battle to find the enemy and engage them first. This was the regular sixteenth and seventeenth century practice, and though it was one of the more dangerous kinds of service, it was not desperate or, in the English sense, forlorn.

Nowadays much the same work is done by the detached bodies of cavalry which are thrown out before the main line of battle without communications or supplies to find the enemy. "Capitulation" is another term of war which is very loosely used. It does not mean surrender, but surrender on terms. In fact, it means the terms, not the surrender. It is from the Latin "capitulum," or "heading" (from which is derived our word "chapter"), and a capitulation is a formal treaty of surrender drawn up under a series of headings or chapters embodying the terms on each point.—Manchester Guardian.

Paid the Fine.

A policeman in a country village where "cases" were rare one day came across his landlord in an incapable state. The chance was too good to be missed, so the landlord was summoned and fined to the amount of 14s. 6d. The fine was paid, but the policeman's feelings can be better imagined than described when, on reaching home, he found his rent had been raised six pence per week, and so it continued for twenty-nine weeks, when the landlord coolly informed him that he had paid the fine and could have his house at the former rent.—London Answers.

Making a Distinction.

ALASKA'S SEAWEED.

Volcanic Eruptions Have a Deadly Effect Upon Kelp Life.

The damage done to seaweed and other forms of marine vegetation is about the last thing that would occur to anybody who had not made a study of the subject as a possible result of a volcanic eruption.

Kelp is one of the most useful forms of seaweed. It used to be found in abundance off various parts of the coast of Alaska, but for several years past the crop has been practically destroyed by volcanic eruptions which have occurred in that vicinity.

This has been a source of great loss to the natives of Alaska, who have made use of kelp in a variety of ways. As it grows only in shallow water, it has proved a valuable aid to navigation in waters where there are practically no aids except such as nature has provided. Then, too, the natives used it to fertilize their gardens.

There are various theories as to just how the action of volcanoes interrupts or entirely stops the growth of kelp. One is that the hot blasts and poisonous gases which pour out of the craters during eruptions are fatal to plant life.

Another more probable explanation of the damage done to kelp is that it is due to the enormous masses of pumice from the volcanoes.

This pumice, it is thought, covers the rocks so that the kelp and other marine plants find it impossible to cling to them, or it may be that it is the grinding effect produced on this great mass of rough stone by the constant movement of the tides and waves which crushes out the water's vegetable life.—New York American.

BRAZIL NUT TREES.

They Do Not Bear Fruit Until They Are Fifty Years Old.

In this country Brazil nuts are almost as well known as walnuts, yet few know the manner of their growth and the steps taken in their collection and marketing. The tree itself is the most majestic in the valley of the Amazon, where it attains a height ranging from fifty to a hundred feet. Generally several hundred trees are found in a group. The control of the best producing districts long ago passed to private individuals; hence the natives are not free to pick and sell the nuts at will.

The Brazil nut tree does not begin to bear fruit until it attains the age of fifty years or thereabouts and continues to produce crops intermittently almost forever. At least trees known to be hundreds of years old have produced crops. The pods in which the nuts are contained drop in November and December.

These pods are very hard and weigh several pounds, consequently the trees are studiously avoided during the period in which the pods are dropping since it would be extremely hazardous for the gatherers to expose themselves to the danger of having the pods fall on them from such a great height. Each pod is at least seven inches in diameter and is full of nuts. The pod is usually opened with a machete.—Argonaut.

Ruskin's Roast Beef.

During a visit to Matlock in 1871 Ruskin was seized with an attack of internal inflammation, which nearly carried him off. Mrs. Arthur Severn, who nursed him, records that at the crisis of this illness "he hungered, to our horror, for a slice of cold roast beef. It was late at night, there was none in the hotel, and Albert Goodwin went off to get some anywhere he could. At last at an eating house in the town he discovered some and came back triumphant with it wrapped in paper. Mr. Ruskin enjoyed his late supper thoroughly. Though we anxiously waited till morning for a result, it had done no harm, and to everybody's surprise he recovered."—London Spectator.

An Observant Boy.

"I wish you boys would be more observant," said a young schoolmaster. "When I was a boy I was always on the lookout, and what I did not see was not worth seeing. I was famous for that. I remember once I was told by a man I met that I was all eyes. What do you suppose he meant by that?" "Probably he was referring to your conversation," replied one boy, and the other boys looked out of the window as they tried to keep their faces sober. This shows that ordinary boys have eyes and ears both.—Philippine Education.

His Counterthrust.

The Other Side's Counsel (fiercely)—I suppose you were brought up to tell the truth? The Goaded Witness—No, I wasn't. The Lawyer—Not brought up to tell the truth! What do you mean by that? The Witness—My folks intended me for a lawyer.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Peculiar Poison.

The Mexican Indians derived from their ancestors, the Aztecs, the method of making the poison of talavatchi. It is a subtle drug, the constituents of which are not known. The peculiar effect of the poison is to destroy the mind, while only slightly affecting the body.

The old lineup will be on the field, members of the team coming from various points in Ohio and taking their old places on the diamond and with some of the old time fervor to "beat the other team or bust."

BAD CONDITION OF LEWIS PIKE AND STREET

A great amount of traffic is being turned over the Lewis pike and Lewis street since the closing of the Jeffersonville pike for improvement, and the pike and street, in a sorry condition at the beginning, is becoming so deplorably bad that those compelled to travel the road and street are making a loud protest over the condition of the thoroughfares. In addition to innumerable ruts and chuck holes which makes traveling a bugbear, the roads show other indications of lack of proper attention, and the proper road and street authorities are being urged to give relief in some way, if it is nothing more than spiking, grading and rolling the thoroughfares where they are the worst.

The wet weather and heavy traffic has sent the road to pieces in short order, and prompt action before the winter sets in or before heavy hauling of corn begins, is desired.

MARRIED ONE WEEK ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Alleging that one day after his marriage to the defendant, she was guilty of misconduct with Frederick Lezier, at his home in Muekingum township, and asserting further that the two have since that time lived together, Charles Arnold filed suit for divorce from Ida Arnold, in common pleas court, Tuesday morning. B. E. Guyton is the plaintiff's attorney.

Less than a week ago the two were married in this city. In making application for the license, Arnold gave his age as 34 and his home address as Washington C. H. The woman said she was 36. Both had been previously married.—Marietta Times

Arnold was released from the Fayette county infirmary last spring and went at once to Marietta where nothing had been heard from him until the present somewhat unusual incident.

Arnold is crippled, having had one leg removed several years ago following an attack of fever.

TENS OF THOUSANDS OF FALL PORKERS

The number of fall pigs in Fayette county this year will reach into the tens of thousands—the largest number in a great many years, according to a local veterinarian who has been over the county considerably.

The number of fall pigs will almost equal the unusual number of spring pigs, according to the veterinarian, and an increased consumption of grain will be result, with an exceptionally heavy marketing of fat swine next year.

RAILROADS GREATLY IMPROVING CROSSINGS

The C. H. & D., D. T. & I. and Pennsylvania railroads are all making elaborate preparations for the new paved street crossings on West Court street, and before the paving is laid will lay new and heavier steel and crossgated ties which will last indefinitely and it is expected that it will not be necessary to disturb the crossings for many years after they are once down.

At the present time the D. T. & I. has a force of men engaged in the work of laying new steel, new ties and bringing the roadbed up to the proper grade.

The enterprise of the railroads meets with the hearty approval of the city officials generally.

WATCH FOR WOMAN COLLECTING MONEY

Complaint has been made that a woman, said to reside in this city, has been going from house to house obtaining money under the representation that she is working for a prize offered by the Grace M. E. Epworth League for the largest amount of money raised for the Home Missionary Society, by Saturday night of this week.

The Epworth League of Grace church has made no such offer, and it is claimed the woman is obtaining money under false representations and those whom she approaches are urged to notify the police immediately that she may be taken in charge.

The woman has approached a number of leading citizens and upon the statement that she was obtaining money for the Home Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, obtained a snug sum toward the "prize."

SUGAR GROVE SESSION

Mrs. Theresa Brakefield filled the role of hostess to the Sugar Grove W. C. T. U., Wednesday afternoon.

A number of good papers were presented on pertinent subjects. Mrs. Maude Cockerill treated of "Reckoning on Rum;" Mrs. Sallie Marine on "Give no Alcohol to Children;" Mrs. Elva Post, "The Bayonet Charge;" Mrs. Lurella Silcott, "Being Interviewed by an Angel;" Miss Minnie Brakefield, "Weighing Down the Safety Valve;" Mrs. Bell Marine, "Alcohol is a Mockery."

Mrs. Laura Pine conducted physical culture drill, after which a social hour with refreshments was enjoyed.

Mrs. Laura Pine was elected alternate to the delegate, Mrs. Pearl Darlington, to the state W. C. T. U. Convention, to be held in Dayton, the 22nd.

In order not to conflict with this convention the next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 21st, at the home of Mrs. Belle Marine.

STREET WORK

Some of the street improvement work has been delayed by the continued rains but the Andrews Paving Co. will begin laying asphalt on East Court street, Monday of next week, it is announced.

The work of pouring the concrete base on West Court street began Thursday. Excavation work on Leesburg avenue is moving forward, and the material removed is being placed on the adjoining streets and alleys.

Work on the Leesburg avenue sewer begins next week and Service Director Gerstner will require 35 additional laborers.

BURIED IN COLUMBUS

The funeral services of Mr. George Owens, of Columbus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Owens, of Manara, who died Sunday, were held in Columbus Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Owens, Mr. Joe Andrews were among relatives from this vicinity going up for the funeral.

The summons of this rising young man at the age of 25 years and at the expiration of only one year of happy married life, is sad beyond words to tell, and has aroused much regret and sympathy in this county, Mr. Owens' former home.

Tomorrow is the last discount day for gas and electric light bills.

THE "FORLORN HOPE."

Real Meaning of a Misused Term in the Vocabulary of War.

In the tales of every war one hears a great deal about "forlorn hopes." The term is one of the most misused in the vocabulary of war. It is commonly understood to mean a desperate venture. It really means "lost troop"—that is, "detached troop."

The word "hope" in the phrase is not an English but a Dutch word, "hoop" meaning literally "heap" and secondarily body of troops. The word "forlorn" represents the Dutch "verloren"—lost. A "verloren hoop" was a detached body of troops thrown out in front of the main line of battle to find the enemy and engage them first. This was the regular sixteenth and seventeenth century practice, and, though it was one of the more dangerous kinds of service, it was not desperate or, in the English sense, forlorn.

Nowadays much the same work is done by the detached bodies of cavalry which are thrown out before the main line of battle without communications or supplies to find the enemy. "Capitulation" is another term of war which is very loosely used. It does not mean surrender, but surrender on terms. In fact, it means the terms, not the surrender. It is from the Latin "capitulum," or "beading" (from which is derived our word "chapter"), and a capitulation is a formal treaty of surrender drawn up under a series of headings or chapters embodying the terms on each point.—Manchester Guardian.

Paid the Fine.

A policeman in a country village where "casses" were rare one day came across his landlord in an incapable state. The chance was too good to be missed, so the landlord was summoned and fined to the amount of 14s. 6d. The fine was paid, but the policeman's feelings can be better imagined than described when, on reaching home, he found his rent had been raised six pence per week, and so it continued for twenty-nine weeks, when the landlord coolly informed him that he had paid the fine and could have his house at the former rent.—London Answers.

Making a Distinction.

"What is the difference," asked the teacher, "between caution and cowardice?" Johnny, who observed things carefully for so youthful a person, answered:

"Caution is when you're afraid and cowardice is when the other fellow's afraid."—Ladies' Home Journal.

"Always, except on the nights we have company or want to go out."—Detroit Free Press.

ALASKA'S SEAWEED.

Volcanic Eruptions Have a Deadly Effect Upon Kelp Life.

The damage done to seaweed and other forms of marine vegetation is about the last thing that would occur to anybody who had not made a study of the subject as a possible result of a volcanic eruption.

Kelp is one of the most useful forms of seaweed. It used to be found in abundance off various parts of the coast of Alaska, but for several years past the crop has been practically destroyed by volcanic eruptions which have occurred in that vicinity.

This has been a source of great loss to the natives of Alaska, who have made use of kelp in a variety of ways. As it grows only in shallow water, it has proved a valuable aid to navigation in waters where there are practically no aids except such as nature has provided. Then, too, the natives used it to fertilize their gardens.

There are various theories as to just how the action of volcanoes interrupts or entirely stops the growth of kelp. One is that the hot blasts and poisonous gases which pour out of the craters during eruptions are fatal to plant life.

Another more probable explanation of the damage done to kelp is that it is due to the enormous masses of pumice from the volcanoes.

This pumice, it is thought, covers the rocks so that the kelp and other marine plants find it impossible to cling to them, or it may be that it is the grinding effect produced on this great mass of rough stone by the constant movement of the tides and waves which crushes out the water's vegetable life.—New York American.

BRAZIL NUT TREES.

They Do Not Bear Fruit Until They Are Fifty Years Old.

In this country Brazil nuts are almost as well known as walnuts, yet few know the manner of their growth and the steps taken in their collection and marketing. The tree itself is the most majestic in the valley of the Amazon, where it attains a height ranging from fifty to a hundred feet. Generally several hundred trees are found in a group. The control of the best producing districts long ago passed to private individuals; hence the natives are not free to pick and sell the nuts at will.

The Brazil nut tree does not begin to bear fruit until it attains the age of fifty years or thereabouts and continues to produce crops intermittently almost forever. At least trees known to be hundreds of years old have produced crops. The pods in which the nuts are contained drop in November and December.

These pods are very hard and weigh several pounds, consequently the trees are studiously avoided during the period in which the pods are dropping since it would be extremely hazardous for the gatherers to expose themselves to the danger of having the pods fall on them from such a great height. Each pod is at least seven inches in diameter and is full of nuts. The pod is usually opened with a machete.—Argonaut.

Ruskin's Roast Beef.

During a visit to Matlock in 1871 Ruskin was seized with an attack of internal inflammation, which nearly carried him off. Mrs. Arthur Severn, who nursed him, records that at the crisis of this illness "he hungered, to our horror, for a slice of cold roast beef. It was late at night, there was none in the hotel, and Albert Goodwin went off to get some anywhere he could. At last at an eating house in the town he discovered some and came back triumphant with it wrapped in paper. Mr. Ruskin enjoyed his late supper thoroughly. Though we anxiously waited till morning for a result, it had done no harm, and to everybody's surprise he recovered."—London Spectator.

An Observant Boy.

"I wish you boys would be more observant," said a young schoolmaster. "When I was a boy I was always on the lookout, and what I did not see was not worth seeing. I was famous for that. I remember once I was told by a man I met that I was all eyes. What do you suppose he meant by that?"

"Probably he was referring to your conversation," replied one boy, and the other boys looked out of the window as they tried to keep their faces sober. This shows that ordinary boys have eyes and ears both.—Philippine Education.

The Gilded Witness—No, I wasn't. The Lawyer—Not brought up to tell the truth! What do you mean by that?

A Peculiar Poison.

In Social Circles

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Parrett entertained with a handsome three-course dinner at their home on the Bloomingburg and New Holland pike the occasion being their golden wedding anniversary.

The color scheme of gold and white was carried out on the table, it fairly glowing with every delicacy of the season.

The bride of fifty years ago is now in her seventy-fourth year and will be remembered by the older residents of the community as Miss Jane Coil. The groom, now passing into his ninth year, belonged to one of the older and well known families of Parretts, settling here years ago.

The day, though gloomy outside, was cheerful inside and was quite a reminder to this aged couple of one just fifty years ago, except as stated by Mr. Parrett, "he didn't believe they had as many good things to eat that day as they had now."

The guests were confined to the children, grandchildren and a few near relatives owing to the health of both Mr. and Mrs. Parrett. One and all joined in wishing them happy returns of the day.

The Wednesday afternoon meeting of the Ladies' Guild of the Presbyterian church, held a session of unusual interest at the home of Mrs. J. M. Willis, with a large attendance. Mrs. J. F. Dennis, president, presided and after Miss Jackson presented the secretary's report there was an hour of business discussion in regard to plans for the coming year's work, and the annual election of officers.

The present officers were re-elected.

The remainder of the afternoon was delightfully social and its pleasures enhanced by a beautiful piano solo, played by Miss Ruth Reid, and a taking reading, "Aunt Mary," given by Miss Doris Willis, to piano accompaniment by Miss Gretchen Willis.

The hostesses were Mesdames Willis, Shoop, Anda Henkle, Devaney, Palmer, Carrie Cline Deere, Snyder, and Gregg, served a dainty summer collation.

Miss Martha Wright, daughter of George Wright, the well-known meatcutter, was married Wednesday evening, September 1, to Estes Bernard, of Melvin, and the young people have already gone to housekeeping on a farm near that village. The families of the bride and groom and a few close friends were invited to attend the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. J. L. McWilliams. Mrs. Bernard has lived in Wilmington nearly all her life and has a great many friends who wish her and her industrious husband a happy wedded life.—Wilmington Journal.

The bride is a niece of Prosecutor Tom S. Maddox, of this city, and has many friends here who are extending hearty congratulations.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of Grace church held the initial meeting of their 1915-16 year, Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Rodecker, on Washington avenue. It was a very enjoyable session with forty-five ladies present, including several visitors.

The newly elected president, Mrs. Henry Wills, was in charge of the business program and made a short introductory talk. The society feels that Mrs. Wills will prove a very efficient president with every interest of the W. H. M. S. at heart.

Mrs. Ed Pine gave a lengthy report of the work of the W. H. M. S. at the Lancaster camp meeting, which she attended as a delegate. Informal discussion of plans for the coming year followed and Mrs. Harvey Ramsey of Athens, who was a visitor, told of the work the Athens delegation was doing.

During the social hour Mrs. F. G. Carpenter introduced a Home Missionary Contest, which proved very interesting and in which Mrs. Harry Rowe won a beautiful bouquet of asters and fern.

Victrola music added to the afternoon's entertainment and a tempting lunch was served by the hostesses.

The following assisted Mrs. Rodecker in the hospitalities: Mesdames Carpenter, Durlinger, T. W. McFadden, Taylor, Dan McLean, Al Thornton, Miss Mayme Adams.

The evening meeting of the missionary society of the First Baptist church was thoroughly enjoyed at the home of Miss Flora Allen, Wednesday evening.

There was a most instructive program including an intensely interesting talk on "Settlement Work," by Miss Lina Willis and paper on "Child Labor," by Mrs. W. W. DeWees. Misses Madonna Dabe and Sarah DeWees played a pretty piano duet.

The evening's hostesses served a tempting lunch.

PLANS FOR UNION STATION WILL REACH MAYOR FRIDAY

There is every reason to believe that the plans and specifications for the new union station to be constructed by the B. & O. and C. H. & D., and to which the D. T. & I. is expected to become a tenant, will be delivered into Mayor Coffey's hands Friday evening at 5:55 o'clock, when Vice President Thompson passes through the city. He has wired Mayor Coffey to meet him at the train at the above hour.

This was announced at a special session of the city council Wednesday night, when council had assembled at the call of Division Superintendent Brooke, who was in the city earlier in the day with certain ordinances which he was informed would only be considered when the plans and specifications for the new station were filed and there was full assurance of the proper station being erected without delay.

Mr. Will Worthington, with whom the Division Superintendent conferred, informed Mr. Brooke that Wednesday night of next week council would probably meet again, and Mr. Brooke promised to have the plans and specifications at that time and it is expected that they will be approved at that time.

When Mr. Worthington announced the status of affairs to council, adjournment was taken until next Wednesday night. Meanwhile the plans and specifications are expected to be on file so that all will be familiar with them by Wednesday night.

The station is to be of pressed brick and dressed stone, and in keeping with the city, according to previous announcements, and it is to be somewhat similar to the station at Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

WINDS THAT WHISTLE.

The Sounds Come Only When the Air Waves Meet Resistance.

Did you ever notice that although you may feel the force of the wind when you are out in it, you do not hear it whistle unless you are close to a building? This is because the sound is produced according to the same principles as apply to the production of the tones of a pipe organ or any instrument on which the tones are produced by blowing.

In order to make the whistling sounds we hear from the wind it is necessary for it to blow against something. That is why we hear it when we are in the house or some other building.

The whistling is caused by the wind blowing past the sharp edge of some obstacle in its path or finding its way through small openings offering some sharp edged resistance.

If you blow through a long tube or pipe you will produce no sound, but if there is an opening with a sharp edge near the end where you blow the blowing will cause a distinct sound. It is on this principle that all small whistles, organ pipes and wind instruments of an orchestra are made.

Another way in which the wind produces sounds is by blowing against objects which vibrate. A curious instance of this is the humming volume of sound produced by the wind blowing through a group of telegraph wires and which may be noted, even when there is not a great force of wind, by placing the ear against a telegraph pole.

Teakwood.

The fact that teakwood is coarse grained, greasy to the touch and possesses an offensive odor kept it in disrepute with English shipbuilders until 1897, when British shipbuilding and railway interests began to recognize the value of Indian teak. During the next seven years all the shipbuilding countries in the world joined in an ever increasing demand for this timber until its prices were forced up to a figure much beyond their normal rates. It has practically become the staple of the local wood industry for the greater part of the entire Indian continent. Teak is being freely planted by the Indian forestry service in the important civil stations all over India, even as far north as Saharanpur, Dehra Dun and Lahore.—Argonaut.

Spanish Court Customs.

There is no court in Europe more tenuous of its etiquette—which was inaugurated several hundreds of years ago—than that of Spain. It is said that King Ferdinand VII, once made a minister resign because he had accidentally touched his hand. One of the quaintest ceremonies is the closing of the royal palace gates at Madrid every night. Electric light has been in use in the palace for quite a long while, but nevertheless every evening at 11 o'clock the officiating gentleman in waiting appears, accompanied by several servants, who carry ancient lanterns, to demand a huge key from a higher official to lock the doors of the palace. This is all the more amusing as the huge key does not fit the modern keyholes. The key is then returned to a third official, and every night gentlemen in waiting have to patrol the corridors of the palace, though sufficient guards are about, to watch over the slumbers of their royal master.

Sir John Lubbock's Ant.

In the biography of Sir John Lubbock, later Lord Avebury, is an amusing story of the notice accorded to an odd pet in the Lubbock family. One of two illustrious queen ants, sovereigns of one of the colonies upon which Sir John based his famous studies of the ways of the little creatures, attained the venerable age of fourteen years and then died. Several scientific journals spoke of her decease, and the news penetrated to France, where a distinguished French journalist, in whose mind, insufficiently acquainted with the possibilities of English orthography, ants and aunts were evidently confused, offered profuse condolences to Sir John "on the loss of his aged and valued relative."

Fortifications of New York Harbor.

The narrow approaches to the harbor of New York have made the fortification of it a simpler matter than usual. On Sandy Hook is Fort Hancock, with an artillery garrison; on the Narrows, Fort Wadsworth, artillery garrison; on the Staten Island side, Fort Tompkins; across the Narrows, Fort Hamilton. The older Fort Lafayette, between Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth, is now used as a storehouse. On Governors Island are Fort Jay, infantry, important barracks and the New York arsenal of the ordnance department. Castle Williams is now a military prison. Fort Totten, artillery post, is on Willet's Point, and directly across from this battery is Fort Schuyler. On Sandy Hook is the proving ground of the ordnance department. A signal corps is stationed at Fort Wood, Bedloe's Island.—New York Times.

WINDING THE CLOCK.

Follow This System and You May Get More Accurate Time.

You cannot secure the best services from a good watch or clock unless you know how to wind them so as to cause the least wear and irregularity in their delicate machinery.

A watch should be wound at the same time every day. If allowed to run down or even almost do so and then wound up until it will not wind any further it cannot do as perfect work as a watch that is not allowed to run to its full capacity or wound up until it is as tight as it can be made.

If a watch is wound both morning and evening at about the same hour and the key is given only enough turns to wind it a little less than half what it could be wound the watch will run more evenly, wear much longer and keep more accurate time than if it is wound up tight once a day.

A watch spring will last longer if it is wound when there is the least extreme of temperature, and morning and evening are, of course, the best in that respect.

It is more or less dangerous to wind a watch during a heavy electric storm, and it is best to avoid winding while on an electric car.

An eight day clock should be wound twice a week at as regular periods as possible to secure the best results. Never allow the clock to run down, and if possible do not wind it until it is tight.

Learn by experience just how many turns of the key it takes to wind the clock to run eight days and then when half of the week is gone wind the clock by giving the key just half as many turns as it would require to wind it all the way. More accurate time will be had and it will avoid placing any of the parts in a strain, which is frequently the cause of good clocks giving out in some particular before they have served half as long as they should.

A little attention to this advice will lengthen the life of any watch or clock and make it a better timepiece.—New York American.

Homemade Toothpowder.

An effective tooth powder which can be always recommended is made as follows: One ounce of precipitated chalk, half an ounce of carbonate of soda, half an ounce of powdered orris root. Mix well together and pass three times through a sieve. Place in a bottle or in tins until required for use. The carbonate of soda removes the grease from the teeth and prevents decay, and the powdered orris root keeps the gums healthy.

In Social Circles

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Parrett entertained with a handsome three-course dinner at their home on the Bloomingburg and New Holland pike the occasion being their golden wedding anniversary.

The color scheme of gold and white was carried out on the table, it fairly glowing with every delicacy of the season.

The bride of fifty years ago is now in her seventy-fourth year and will be remembered by the older residents of the community as Miss Jane Coff.

The groom, now passing into his ninetieth year, belonged to one of the older and well known families of Parretts, settling here years ago.

The day, though gloomy outside, was cheerful inside and was quite a reminder to this aged couple of one just fifty years ago, except as stated by Mr. Parrett, "he didn't believe they had as many good things to eat that day as they had now."

The guests were confined to the children, grandchildren and a few near relatives owing to the health of both Mr. and Mrs. Parrett.

One and all joined in wishing them happy returns of the day.

The Wednesday afternoon meeting of the Ladies' Guild of the Presbyterian church, held a session of unusual interest at the home of Mrs. J. M. Willis, with a large attendance.

Mrs. J. F. Dennis, president, presided and after Miss Jackson presented the secretary's report there was an hour of business discussion in regard to plans for the coming year's work, and the annual election of officers.

The present officers were re-elected.

The remainder of the afternoon was delightfully social and its pleasure enhanced by a beautiful piano solo, played by Miss Ruth Reid, and a taking reading, "Aunt Mary," given by Miss Doris Willis, to piano accompaniment by Miss Gretchen Willis.

The hostesses were Mesdames Willis, Shoop, Andia Henkle, Devaney, Palmer, Carrie Chne Deere, Snyder, and Gregg, served a dainty summer collation.

Miss Martha Wright, daughter of George Wright, the well-known meatcutter, was married Wednesday evening, September 1, to Estes Bernard, of Melvin, and the young people have already gone to housekeeping on a farm near that village.

The families of the bride and groom and a few close friends were invited to attend the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. J. L. McWilliams.

Mrs. Bernard has lived in Wilmington nearly all her life and has a great many friends who wish her and her industrious husband a happy wedded life.—Wilmington Journal.

During the social hour Mrs. F. G. Carpenter introduced a Home Missionary Contest, which proved very interesting and in which Mrs. Harry Rowe won a beautiful bouquet of asters and fern.

Victrola music added to the afternoon's entertainment and a tempting lunch was served by the hostesses.

The following assisted Mrs. Rodecker in the hospitalities: Mesdames Carpenter, Durlinger, T. W. McFadden, Taylor, Dan McLean, Al Thornton, Miss Mayme Adams.

The evening meeting of the missionary society of the First Baptist church was thoroughly enjoyed at the home of Miss Flora Allen, Wednesday evening.

There was a most instructive program including an intensely interesting talk on "Settlement Work," by Miss Lina Willis and paper on "Child Labor," by Mrs. W. W. DeWees. Misses Madonna Dabe and Sarah DeWees played a pretty piano duet.

PLANS FOR UNION STATION WILL REACH MAYOR FRIDAY

There is every reason to believe that the plans and specifications for the new union station to be constructed by the B. & O. and C. H. & D., and to which the D. T. & I. is expected to become a tenant, will be delivered into Mayor Coffey's hands Friday evening at 5:55 o'clock, when Vice President Thompson passes through the city. He has wired Mayor Coffey to meet him at the train at the above hour.

This was announced at a special session of the city council Wednesday night, when council had assembled at the call of Division Superintendent Brooke, who was in the city earlier in the day with certain ordinances which he was informed would only be considered when the plans and specifications for the new station were filed and there was full assurance of the proper station being erected without delay.

Mr. Will Worthington, with whom the Division Superintendent conferred, informed Mr. Brooke that Wednesday night of next week council would probably meet again, and Mr. Brooke promised to have the plans and specifications at that time and it is expected that they will be approved at that time.

When Mr. Worthington announced the status of affairs to council, adjournment was taken until next Wednesday night. Meanwhile the plans and specifications are expected to be on file so that all will be familiar with them by Wednesday night.

WINDS THAT WHISTLE.

The Sounds Come Only When the Air Waves Meet Resistance.

Did you ever notice that although you may feel the force of the wind when you are out in it, you do not hear it whistle unless you are close to a building? This is because the sound is produced according to the same principles as apply to the production of the tones of a pipe organ or any instrument on which the tones are produced by blowing.

In order to make the whistling sounds we hear from the wind it is necessary for it to blow against something. That is why we hear it when we are in the house or some other building.

The whistling is caused by the wind blowing past the sharp edge of some obstacle in its path or finding its way through small openings offering some sharp edged resistance.

If you blow through a long tube or pipe you will produce no sound, but if there is an opening with a sharp edge near the end where you blow the blowing will cause a distinct sound. It is on this principle that all small whistles, organ pipes and wind instruments of an orchestra are made.

Another way in which the wind produces sounds is by blowing against objects which vibrate. A curious instance of this is the humming volume of sound produced by the wind blowing through a group of telegraph wires and which may be noted, even when there is not a great force of wind, by placing the ear against a telegraph pole.—Boston Herald.

Teakwood.

The fact that teakwood is coarse grained, greasy to the touch and possesses an offensive odor kept it in disrepute with English shipbuilders until 1897, when British shipbuilding and railway interests began to recognize the value of Indian teak. During the next seven years all the shipbuilding countries in the world joined in an ever increasing demand for this timber until its prices were forced up to a figure much beyond their normal rates. It has practically become the staple of the local wood industry for the greater part of the entire Indian continent. Teak is being freely planted by the Indian forestry service in the important civil stations all over India, even as far north as Saharanpur, Dehra Dun and Lahore.—Argonaut.

Spanish Court Customs.

There is no court in Europe more tenacious of its etiquette—which was inaugurated several hundreds of years ago—than that of Spain. It is said that King Ferdinand VII, once made a minister resign because he had accidentally touched his hand. One of the quaintest ceremonies is the closing of the royal palace gates at Madrid every night. Electric light has been in use in the palace for quite a long while, but nevertheless every evening at 11 o'clock the officiating gentleman in waiting appears, accompanied by several servants, who carry ancient lanterns, to demand a huge key from a higher official to lock the doors of the palace. This is all the more amusing as the huge key does not fit the modern keyholes. The key is then returned to a third official, and every night gentlemen in waiting have to patrol the corridors of the palace, though sufficient guards are about, to watch over the slumbers of their royal master.

Sir John Lubbock's Ant.

In the biography of Sir John Lubbock, later Lord Avebury, is an amusing story of the notice accorded to an old pet in the Lubbock family. One of two illustrious queen ants, sovereign of one of the colonies upon which Sir John based his famous studies of the ways of the little creatures, attained the venerable age of fourteen years and then died. Several scientific journals spoke of her decease, and the news penetrated to France, where a distinguished French journalist, in whose mind, insufficiently acquainted with the possibilities of English orthography, ants and ants were evidently confused, offered profuse condolences to Sir John "on the loss of his aged and valued relative."

Fortifications of New York Harbor.

The narrow approaches to the harbor of New York have made the fortification of it a simpler matter than usual. On Sandy Hook is Fort Hancock, with an artillery garrison; on the Narrows, Fort Wadsworth, artillery garrison; on the Staten Island side, Fort Tompkins; across the Narrows, Fort Hamilton. The older Fort Lafayette, between Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth, is now used as a storehouse. On Governors Island are Fort Jay, infantry, important barracks and the New York arsenal of the ordnance department. Castle Williams is now a military prison. Fort Totten, artillery post, is on Willet's Point, and directly across from this battery is Fort Schuyler. On Sandy Hook is the proving ground of the ordnance department. A signal corps is stationed at Fort Wood, Bedloe's Island.—New York Times.

AERIAL RAID ON LONDON

Fires Started By the Explosions and Casualties Recorded.

ATTACK MADE IN THE NIGHT

Was the Second German Aerial Raid on England Within Twenty-four Hours—Ten Persons Killed and Nearly Fifty Wounded in the Raid of Tuesday Night—Story of the Bombardment.

London, Sept. 9. — The second air raid on England occurred within a matter of twenty-four hours. Hostile air craft Wednesday night passed over the eastern coast, which they visited also Tuesday night, an added to this area an attack on London, dropping incendiary and explosive bombs. The only details given out were that a few casualties had been reported and that the fires which had been started were under control. No information was available of the exact districts which suffered from this latest raid or the number of casualties.

In the Zeppelin raid on the east coast Tuesday night ten persons were killed and forty-six wounded, a majority of the victims being women and children. Fifteen small dwelling houses were demolished or seriously damaged and several fires were started. The fires were promptly extinguished.

Wednesday night's raid was heralded by advices from Amsterdam announcing that three airships coming from the east had passed over Dordrecht, in the southern part of Holland, headed for the English coast.

The raid of Tuesday night is described in the following official statement:

"Three Zeppelins visited the eastern counties Tuesday night and dropped bombs. Anti-air craft guns were in action. Aeroplanes went up, but were unable to locate the airships. Fifteen small dwelling houses were demolished or seriously damaged, and a large number of doors, windows, etc., were broken. Several fires were caused, but were promptly extinguished. There was no other serious damage. The following casualties have been reported: Killed two men, three women, five children, a total of ten. Wounded seriously four men, eleven women, five children, a total of twenty. Wounded slightly nine men, five women, nine children, a total of twenty-three. Three persons are missing. All the above were civilians except one soldier."

GERMANY'S PLEA IS SELF-DEFENSE

Sinking of the Arabic the Text of Germany's Note.

IS HANDED TO ENVOY GERARD

Deep Regret Over the Loss of American Lives Expressed by the Imperial Government, Which Would Refer Question of Reparation to The Hague—Note Based on Submarine Commander's Report.

Berlin, Sept. 9. — The German foreign office handed to American Ambassador Gerard Germany's note covering the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic by a German submarine on Aug. 19, costing the lives of two Americans.

The note, which is based upon the report made officially by the commander of the submarine that sank the Arabic to his chief, Grand Admiral Tirpitz, expresses the deep regret of the German government that American lives were lost as a result of the action of the German submarine commander. The destruction of the Arabic is ascribed to an act of self-defense. The question of reparation and compensation for the loss of American lives the German government offers to refer to the Hague tribunal for settlement.

It is learned that the submarine commander sent in his report a few days ago. This disproves reports that the Arabic's destroyer had been sunk with craft and crew by a British transport as well as rumors that the crew was captured by the British after the Arabic was sunk.

Self-defense is the plea of the submarine commander. He declares that a sudden move on the part of the Arabic to turn toward his craft led him to believe she was heading for the submarine to sink it. Then he fired the torpedo to save his vessel, his crew and himself.

Such in substance is the contents of Germany's note which is now en route to the American state department. It covers four typewritten pages.

Already speculation is rife in official circles here as to how the United States will receive Germany's explanation. The consensus of opinion is that the diplomatic discussion which is bound to follow the note will deal primarily with the question as to what constitutes self-defense. A leading naval critic said frankly that he predicted that the United States, while likely to accept Germany's stand on the Arabic, will at once insist upon a clear cut stipulation of conditions under which Germany proposes to live up to the promise already given through Ambassador Bernstorff.

SECURE FOOTING IN SUBURBS OF VILNA

Germans Capture An Important Railway Town.

London, Sept. 9.—The Germans captured Wolkowysk, an important railway town east of Slonim, and secured a footing in the eastern suburbs of Vilna, at a town called Nowo Troki. This place is but thirteen miles from the center of Vilna, which is one of the major points in the new line of Russian defense. On the road to Pinsk, east of Brest-Litovsk, the Russians are still holding the Germans at the Jacobsda river.

In the south the Russians are making determined efforts to regain the initiative, while in the center the Austro-Germans continue to increase their advantage.

Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and his commanders in Courlan are still being denied their objective, the Dvina river, while Field Marshal Von Mackensen and the Austrian generals at the other end of the line are engaged in opposing the Russian offensive.

WIDOW IS MURDERED

New York, Sept. 9.—Mrs. James E. Nichols, widow of a member of a wholesale grocery firm, was murdered in her home by three masked men, who carried revolvers. After the men had entered the house at the point of their guns and had bound and gagged two of Mrs. Nichols' servants the men went into Mrs. Nichols' room. When she was found by the maid, who managed in an hour's time to free herself from her bonds, Mrs. Nichols was dead on the bed in her own room, having been strangled by means of a tablecloth and a dolly. Mrs. Nichols was sixty years old and inherited more than $1,000,000 from the estate of her husband, who died abroad a year ago.

THE SUB. FLOTILLA NOT INEFFICIENT

Washington, Sept. 9. — Secretary Daniels defended the submarine flotilla of the United States navy from charges which have been made against its efficiency since the sinking of the F-4. Mr. Daniels declared that most of the American submarines are as good as any of the types constructed before the European war broke out. No nation, he said, is satisfied with its marine engines and batteries yet. "We have just arranged for putting in two Edison batteries," said the secretary. "One we have already put on submarine E-2 at the New York navy yard, and the other one will be put in the L-8, now building at the Portsmouth navy yard."

TWELVE HIGHWAYS COAST TO COAST

Chicago, Sept. 9.—William J. Bryan has what he regards as a strategic plan for national defense. His contention is that with twelve highways leading from coast to coast the American farmers who would fight a foreign foe could seize their guns and mobilize quickly at certain given points by riding to them in their motor cars. The plan was announced in the course of a speech on "The Causeless War" given in addresses delivered in Chicago. Mr. Bryan was especially wro' at the criticisms that such roads might serve the enemy for the transport of artillery.

The late H. B. Clafin, who was one of the great merchants of the last generation, lived for many years at Kingsbridge, then one of the suburbs of New York. It was his whim to have each morning before breakfast a drink of cold water fresh from the spring near the house.

One very rainy morning the pitcher was not in its usual place, and he asked the waitress why it was missing.

"Why, Mr. Clafin," she said, "it was raining so hard and is so muddy that I was afraid if I went after the water I should be too soiled to wait on the table. I asked Michael to get it for me, but he said it was his business to look after the horses and carriages, not to run errands."

"Oh!" said Mr. Clafin thoughtfully. "Perhaps he is right, Ella. Please tell him I want the victoria."

AERIAL RAID ON LONDON

Fires Started By the Explosions and Casualties Recorded.

ATTACK MADE IN THE NIGHT

Was the Second German Aerial Raid on England Within Twenty-four Hours—Ten Persons Killed and Nearly Fifty Wounded in the Raid of Tuesday Night—Story of the Bombardment.

London, Sept. 9. — The second air raid on England occurred within a matter of twenty-four hours. Hostile air craft Wednesday night passed over the eastern coast, which they visited also Tuesday night, an added to this area an attack on London, dropping incendiary and explosive bombs. The only details given out were that a few casualties had been reported and that the fires which had been started were under control. No information was available of the exact districts which suffered from this latest raid or the number of casualties.

In the Zeppelin raid on the east coast Tuesday night ten persons were killed and forty-six wounded, a majority of the victims being women and children. Fifteen small dwelling houses were demolished or seriously damaged and several fires were started. The fires were promptly extinguished.

Wednesday night's raid was heralded by advices from Amsterdam announcing that three airships coming from the east had passed over Dordrecht, in the southern part of Holland, headed for the English coast.

The raid of Tuesday night is described in the following official statement:

"Three Zeppelins visited the eastern counties Tuesday night and dropped bombs. Anti-air craft guns were in action. Aeroplanes went up, but were unable to locate the airships. Fifteen small dwelling houses were demolished or seriously damaged, and a large number of doors, windows, etc., were broken. Several fires were caused, but were promptly extinguished. There was no other serious damage. The following casualties have been reported: Killed two men, three women, five children, a total of ten. Wounded seriously four men, eleven women, five children, a total of twenty. Wounded slightly nine men, five women, nine children, a total of twenty-three. Three persons are missing. All the above were civilians except one soldier."

GERMANY'S PLEA IS SELF-DEFENSE

Sinking of the Arabic the Text of Germany's Note.

IS HANDED TO ENVOY GERARD

Deep Regret Over the Loss of American Lives Expressed by the Imperial Government, Which Would Refer Question of Reparation to The Hague—Note Based on Submarine Commander's Report.

Berlin, Sept. 9. — The German foreign office handed to American Ambassador Gerard Germany's note covering the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic by a German submarine on Aug. 19, costing the lives of two Americans.

The note, which is based upon the report made officially by the commander of the submarine that sank the Arabic to his chief, Grand Admiral Tirpitz, expresses the deep regret of the German government that American lives were lost as a result of the action of the German submarine commander. The destruction of the Arabic is ascribed to an act of self-defense. The question of reparation and compensation for the loss of American lives the German government offers to refer to the Hague tribunal for settlement.

It is learned that the submarine commander sent in his report a few days ago. This disproves reports that the Arabic's destroyer had been sunk with craft and crew by a British transport as well as rumors that the crew was captured by the British after the Arabic was sunk.

Self-defense is the plea of the submarine commander. He declares that a sudden move on the part of the Arabic to turn toward his craft led him to believe she was heading for the submarine to sink it. Then he fired the torpedo to save his vessel, his crew and himself.

Such in substance is the contents of Germany's note which is now en route to the American state department. It covers four typewritten pages.

Already speculation is rife in official circles here as to how the United States will receive Germany's explanation. The consensus of opinion is that the diplomatic discussion which is bound to follow the note will deal primarily with the question as to what constitutes self-defense. A leading naval critic said frankly that he predicted that the United States, while likely to accept Germany's stand on the Arabic, will at once insist upon a clear cut stipulation of conditions under which Germany proposes to live up to the promise already given through Ambassador Bernstorff.

of the American submarines are as good as any of the types constructed before the European war broke out. No nation, he said, is satisfied with its marine engines and batteries yet. "We have just arranged for putting in two Edison batteries," said the secretary. "One we have already put on submarine E-2 at the New York navy yard, and the other one will be put in the L-8, now building at the Portsmouth navy yard."

TWELVE HIGHWAYS COAST TO COAST

Chicago, Sept. 9.—William J. Bryan has what he regards as a strategic plan for national defense. His contention is that with twelve highways leading from coast to coast the American farmers who would fight a foreign foe could seize their guns and mobilize quickly at certain given points by riding to them in their motor cars. The plan was announced in the course of a speech on "The Causeless War" given in addresses delivered in Chicago. Mr. Bryan was especially wroth at the criticisms that such roads might serve the enemy for the transport of artillery.

ELLA'S MORNING RIDE.

When Red Tape Taught the Coachman a Lesson in Manners.

The late H. B. Cladlin, who was one of the great merchants of the last generation, lived for many years at Kingsbridge, then one of the suburbs of New York. It was his whim to have each morning before breakfast a drink of cold water fresh from the spring near the house.

One very rainy morning the pitcher was not in its usual place, and he asked the waitress why it was missing.

"Why, Mr. Cladlin," she said, "it was raining so hard and is so muddy that I was afraid if I went after the water I should be too soiled to wait on the table. I asked Michael to get it for me, but he said it was his business to look after the horses and carriages, not to run errands."

"Oh!" said Mr. Cladlin thoughtfully. "Perhaps he is right, Ella. Please tell him I want the victoria."

SECURE FOOTING IN SUBURBS OF VILNA

Germans Capture An Important Railway Town.

London, Sept. 9.—The Germans captured Wolkowysk, an important railway town east of Slonim, and secured a footing in the eastern suburbs of Vilna, at a town called Nowo Troki. This place is but thirteen miles from the center of Vilna, which is one of the major points in the new line of Russian defense. On the road to Pinsk, east of Brest-Litovsk, the Russians are still holding the Germans at the Jacobsda river.

In the south the Russians are making determined efforts to regain the initiative, while in the center the Austro-Germans continue to increase their advantage.

Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and his commanders in Courland are still being denied their objective, the Dvina river, while Field Marshal Von Mackensen and the Austrian generals at the other end of the line are engaged in opposing the Russian offensive.

WIDOW IS MURDERED

New York, Sept. 9.—Mrs. James E. Nichols, widow of a member of a wholesale grocery firm, was murdered in her home by three masked men, who carried revolvers. After the men had entered the house at the point of their guns and had bound and gagged two of Mrs. Nichols' servants the men went into Mrs. Nichols' room. When she was found by the maid, who managed in an hour's time to free herself from her bonds, Mrs. Nichols was dead on the bed in her own room, having been strangled by means of a tablecloth and a dolly. Mrs. Nichols was sixty years old and inherited more than $1,000,000 from the estate of her husband, who died abroad a year ago.

OLD TIME BATTLES.

They Were Mere Skirmishes When Compared With Modern War.

In the light of modern warfare the old time battles shrink to the proportions of ordinary street brawls. The opposing armies were usually arrayed in lines within hearing of one another. Frequently the actual combat was precluded by an exchange of opprobrious profanity in order to get up the proper sentiment of "holy wrath," which was considered an indispensable element in a soldier's efficiency.

Alexander the Great conquered the orient with only 35,000 men. On a still smaller scale the great battles of Israel appear to have been conducted, as told in the Bible accounts. For instance, in the fight against Gideon the Israelites are said to have suffered severe losses—to wit, thirty men.

The Egyptian army which invaded Palestine and subjugated the whole country counted barely 5,000 soldiers. Saul confronted his Palestine adversaries with an "army" of 600, which in the course of time was increased to 1,000 after the "militarists" of those days had persuaded the authorities to provide a reserve force, a sort of "land-sturm," of 400 warriors brave and bold.

King David's military establishment did not exceed his predecessor's in numbers. According to the first book of Kings, however, King Ahab must have been pretty much of a war lord, judging by the standard of olden times. In his army were 7,000 soldiers and a constabulary force of 230 men.—Argonaut.

Pepper.

The value of pepper was known of old. We read that when Rome had to be ransomed from the barbarian conqueror in the year 400 Alaric demanded 3,000 pounds of pepper among the payments and that Hippocrates used it in medicine, applying it to the skin.

EAST INDIAN IDOLS.

Some That Are Guarded and Saluted by British Troops.

In India a British guard of honor presents arms to a stone tiger every day. The tiger is regarded by the natives as a god who drives away all danger and calamity, and once some soldiers, in a spirit of mischief, overthrew the image from its resting place and sent it rolling into a valley below.

So shocked and scandalized were the natives that a revolt seemed imminent, and Lord Combermere quieted the outraged natives by restoring the image to its pedestal and ordering the regiment to salute it in full view of all. Since that time a British troop has kept watch over the tiger idol day by day.

Another Indian idol which is watched over by the British is the god whose name is Klak Klak, equivalent to "Lord of Lords," which is supposed to be asleep for 6,000 years and whose awakening will be the end of all things.

Hence the natives of the city of Pegu, in Burma, are terribly afraid that some one will arouse the god, so the British government, to avert trouble, stationed a sentry there to prevent this catastrophe.

Once a year a strange custom is observed in Cairo. A piece of carpet on which, according to tradition, Mahomet once sat and which is the most famous sacred relic of Islam, is carried through the streets, and the khedive and his troops all receive it in review order and salute it as they pass. The relic is guarded most carefully at ordinary times, and the officer in charge of it each morning must salute it with his sword raised, while the bugler blows three blasts before it.—Exchange.

SENTRIES FOR CHURCHES.

A Custom Forced by Native Feuds in the Melanesian Islands.

In the Melanesian islands the natives carry on feuds with a more relentless hatred even than the vendettistes of Corsica. In these islands Christianity has been made, at least in outward aspect, the religion of the people.

That it really does mean something to the Melanesian is evidenced by the reply I received from an intelligent old chief when I asked him why he did not become a Christian.

"I'm to be," he said, "when I kill the devil who kill my boy five years ago." So relentlessly are these feuds carried on that it is the custom for a native of wealth with a grievance against another, but who finds it impossible or inexpedient to kill his enemy and secure his head himself, to hire a professional murderer and pay him upon the delivery of the head.

Often in the years that are just gone indiscriminate killing went on with such savage persistence that even during church service "pot shots" were taken at marked worshippers through the doors and windows.

The situation became so acute in one village that the government was petitioned, and the response was the loan to the missionary of a rifle.

The missionary took the hint and armed one of his natives who stood guard outside the church during services.

And so it became the fashion on many of the islands to add a sentry to the church rolls.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

How a Coal Fire Protects Itself.

A curious way in which a fire in the heart of a coal pile keeps itself from being put out is noted in a mining journal. Such fires often start in the interior of large piles of coal owing to heat developed by slow oxidation, which is prevented by the size of the pile from escaping into the air. Such fires are difficult to put out owing to the fact that the burning mass turns the coal around it into coke, which is nearly impervious to water. The pile may thus be thoroughly drenched without putting out the fire, which it never really reaches. The only way to deal with the situation is to drive into the pile a sharpened iron pipe long enough to reach the burning coal and then to couple a hose to the upper end and turn on the water.

A Dreadful Mistake.

I'm the publisher, so I ought to know. Gumph—I'm so glad to hear you say that, because I am the author. Glympe (suddenly collapses)—Well—er—er—that is, it may sell fast. But there are very serious risks." (Swoons away.)—London Mail.

She Valued Her Head.

OLD TIME BATTLES.
They Were Mere Skirmishes When Compared With Modern War.
In the light of modern warfare the old time battles shrink to the proportions of ordinary street brawls. The opposing armies were usually arrayed in lines within hearing of one another. Frequently the actual combat was preceded by an exchange of opprobrious profanity in order to get up the proper sentiment of "holy wrath," which was considered an indispensable element in a soldier's efficiency.
Alexander the Great conquered the orient with only 35,000 men. On a still smaller scale the great battles of Israel appear to have been conducted, as told in the Bible accounts. For instance, in the fight against Gideon the Israelites are said to have suffered severe losses—to wit, thirty men.
The Egyptian army which invaded Palestine and subjugated the whole country counted barely 5,000 soldiers. Saul confronted his Palestine adversaries with an "army" of 600, which in the course of time was increased to 1,000 after the "militarists" of those days had persuaded the authorities to provide a reserve force, a sort of "land-sturm," of 400 warriors brave and bold.
King David's military establishment did not exceed his predecessor's in numbers. According to the first book of Kings, however, King Ahab must have been pretty much of a war lord, judging by the standard of olden times. In his army were 7,000 soldiers and a constabulary force of 230 men.—Argonaut.

Pepper.
The value of pepper was known of old. We read that when Rome had to be ransomed from the barbarian conqueror in the year 400 Alaric demanded 3,000 pounds of pepper among the payments and that Hippocrates used it in medicine, applying it to the skin.

EAST INDIAN IDOLS.
Some That Are Guarded and Saluted by British Troops.
In India a British guard of honor presents arms to a stone tiger every day. The tiger is regarded by the natives as a god who drives away all danger and calamity, and once some soldiers, in a spirit of mischief, overthrew the image from its resting place and sent it rolling into a valley below.
So shocked and scandalized were the natives that a revolt seemed imminent, and Lord Combermere quieted the outraged natives by restoring the image to its pedestal and ordering the regiment to salute it in full view of all. Since that time a British troop has kept watch over the tiger idol day by day.
Another Indian idol which is watched over by the British is the god whose name is Klak Klak, equivalent to "Lord of Lords," which is supposed to be asleep for 6,000 years and whose awakening will be the end of all things.
Hence the natives of the city of Pegu, in Burma, are terribly afraid that some one will arouse the god, so the British government, to avert trouble, stationed a sentry there to prevent this catastrophe.
Once a year a strange custom is observed in Cairo. A piece of carpet on which, according to tradition, Mahomet once sat and which is the most famous sacred relic of Islam, is carried through the streets, and the khedive and his troops all receive it in review order and salute it as they pass.
The relic is guarded most carefully at ordinary times, and the officer in charge of it each morning must salute it with his sword raised, while the bugler blows three blasts before it.—Exchange.

SENTRIES FOR CHURCHES.
A Custom Forced by Native Feuds in the Melanesian Islands.

In the Melanesian islands the natives carry on feuds with a more relentless hatred even than the vendettistes of Corsica. In these islands Christianity has been made, at least in outward aspect, the religion of the people.
That it really does mean something to the Melanesian is evidenced by the reply I received from an intelligent old chief when I asked him why he did not become a Christian.
"I'm to be," he said, "when I kill the devil who kill my boy five years ago."
So relentlessly are these feuds carried on that it is the custom for a native of wealth with a grievance against another, but who finds it impossible or inexpedient to kill his enemy and secure his head himself, to hire a professional murderer and pay him upon the delivery of the head.
Often in the years that are just gone indiscriminate killing went on with such savage persistence that even during church service "pot shots" were taken at marked worshippers through the doors and windows.
The situation became so acute in one village that the government was petitioned, and the response was the loan to the missionary of a rifle.
The missionary took the hint and armed one of his natives who stood guard outside the church during services.
And so it became the fashion on many of the islands to add a sentry to the church rolls.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

How a Coal Fire Protects Itself.
A curious way in which a fire in the heart of a coal pile keeps itself from being put out is noted in a mining journal. Such fires often start in the interior of large piles of coal owing to heat developed by slow oxidation, which is prevented by the size of the pile from escaping into the air. Such fires are difficult to put out owing to the fact that the burning mass turns the coal around it into coke, which is nearly impervious to water. The pile may thus be thoroughly drenched without putting out the fire, which it never really reaches. The only way to deal with the situation is to drive into the pile a sharpened iron pipe long enough to reach the burning coal and then to couple a hose to the upper end and turn on the water.

A Dreadful Mistake.
Glympe (in railway carriage)—This is a splendid book, a masterpiece. I recommend you to buy it. Gunph—I wonder how it is selling. Glympe—It is selling in thousands. Can't publish it fast enough. I'm the publisher, so I ought to know. Gunph—I'm so glad to hear you say that, because I am the author. Glympe (suddenly collapses)—Well—er—er—that is, it may sell fast. But there are very serious risks. (Swoons away.)—London Mail.

She Valued Her Head.
Henry VIII after the death of Jane Seymour had some difficulty in getting another wife. His first offer was to the dowager Duchess of Milan, but her answer is said to have been: "I have only one head. If I had two one should certainly be at his service."

His Feet.
"Your friend had quite an acrobatic promotion."
"How's that?"

Or $200 in Cash Divided

A beautiful present to every one who answers this whether right or wrong.

DIRECTIONS.
This puzzle is made up of nine squares in the shape of a cross, and the numerals 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. The trick is to arrange these nine numbers so that when added together they will make 23 in both directions; both lines must add up 23 not only from left to right, but up and down as well. To the person who can do this correctly we will give a beautiful $275 piano free, but in case two, three, or more do it correctly, we will not give the piano away, but will divide $200 in cash among the trying contestants. Simply fill in the above squares with the numbers in their proper order, write your name and address plainly on a separate piece of paper, and bring or mail to us not later than Wednesday, Sept. 15. You will be notified by mail as to the result of the contest.

A FAMOUS MISER.

Cooke Died Wealthy After a Life of Petty Saving and Trickery.

Thomas Cooke, known as the "Islington miser," left at his death more than $300,000. His whole life was one of penury, petty saving and petty trickery. He made it a habit in order to get meals for nothing to fall in a pretended fit in front of a house at dinner time and on recovering he would naturally be invited to share the meal, which he always did after the proper amount of protestation. Often he would pretend to these kind people that they had saved his life, would make a great fuss over them and tell them he intended to remember them or their children in his will.

One man, a poor relation, occasionally sent him small presents of butter. This angered Cooke, who said to him: "Why send me such dribbets, you who are to get thousands and thousands at my death? Send me a firkin." The firkin and several more were sent, but neither this legacy nor any of the others came to reality.

Like many men shrewd in petty ways, he was easily deceived in matters out of his own line. Thus once when his horse was sick he was too mean to pay a horse doctor and asked advice of a quack, who told him he must take thirty onions, drill a hole through each, put them on a string, put the necklace around the horse's neck and let it stay there. The expense of thirty onions was too much; he bought fifteen, and when, after many days, they had served their purpose, he took them to the servant and ordered her to make an onion porridge for the day's dinner.—Exchange.
